1945 late summer : Upon 1937 Summer - Aunt Win said when he ANDRE is in her kitchen taking tea - “ you went into the Gift Shop - I was not there that summer for 3 months - I had gone to St Anne’s to stay with my cousins after a broken engagement ... that did not suit his mother - but I heard all about your visit when I came back to work again for awhile at the Gift Shop -

‘ Greetha in Sunday clothes & a tall young man from SPAIN - you bought a present for J O the young lady with you sometimes - All the girls told me when I got back in September & how good looking he was - & he’d written a book - that men liked...”

1945 - My ex-ATS Aunt Winnie now is to be called Win & Aunt Win by nephews & nieces - She had walked me by the best restaurant with dancing on the Seafront & in the town speaking of 1937-

It was deserted- shuttered since before the WAR - I had already had an experience of un-tranquillity with George Colonel Andre that summer when he wished to walk on our 1937 summer footsteps -

Aunt Win began to reminded me of how Andre & JO & I & Stella stars Unity’s mother that summer 1937 ... all went to this expensive place & she our hostess paid for it `as a treat` Yes some scenes arose as if from hundreds of years ago-`

I G.R. ... will write some of that evening 1937 -

George ANDRE 1950s has given me back some of the memories from his notebooks - 1937

1937 Summer - Andre & JO are swooping in dance there tall figures full of energy to a good Band of about 9 musicians- NIGHT & DAY & the other popular 1930s tunes - They begin the supper when I begin to sleep under the table on his coat - then I awake to the lovely music playing on - & we all 3 go dancing together ...

I on his shoulder - or held to his breast- he has one hand for holding JO in the dance - / am a bush baby with big eyes at night ...

We sit on the balcony where our table seems to be half in half out on the balcony where the big sliding glass windows are pulled open wide -

1937 our happiness's ...

11.30 pm - Then we go for a walk on the Promenade after sitting looking into the dark navy blue black night blending into the silver black sea & it is also a midnight dull silver blue to coal black sky where the electric lights reach - Some ships anchored far out with lights - steamers - fisher boats ... & they remind me of current fashions of sequins on black & deepest velvet black-blue...

There is the murmur of sea & soft voices in happy tones on the Pier

& along the Sea front in the grey & deep grey darkness the smell of fags - some different scents are miniature cigars ... ladies wear scents ...

Coty l'Aimant is very popular -

-NO MONSTERS FROM THE DEEP - all gone to London Town & to SPAIN - the Murgatroyd Ethiopia Missionary Estate

but I G.R. do not know until October 1937-

1937 - That evening - that summer - we saw a world at ease & in our state of happiness it seemed perhaps peace would always be here - But there is talk of Germany & War & we have listened early mornings as newspapers are read along the Seafront & comments made - War talk drifts in short phrases from turned pages - some very concerned facesv... a shaking head or two about bad times to come ... mention of The Great War that finished 1919...

only 18 years ago ...`

Perhaps the music Sand in my Shoes was danced to by us three - such a beautiful tune I think - What did they have for supper in this most expensive restaurant ? I do not recall or did

1937 - JO's evening frock a disappointment :

... but she explained she has to have something that she can travel with & will not need pressing - Its a dull brick red with broad straps crossed over her bare back & a swirling skirt to her ankles. I had imagined her in a frock as the Hollywood film Romeo

Auntie Winnie & I saw it in the Odeon cinema some months ago -
Or JO in organza-lace-embroidery-fairy like-
Or a goddess as Margarethea in the oyster satin 1860s gown ... her trousseau for New York & the Grote family gatherings - or when they SAIL IN - in the family ship `The Mary to Monaco or Venice or Alexandria ...

There was a deathly hush as Margarethe & Tiggy stepped ashore in Japan 1860s - & then both of them greeted her Ransom line in their natural Japanese tongue - This is our Okinawa old Royal line the 1504 marriage of 1937 - One day I will draw a frock for JO & see if she likes it ... when we have a wet day ... then Lennie could do the final design & I could pay for it to be made up ... & after JO has worn it perhaps for her wedding ... then it can be borrowed for other family weddings & dress brides of another nation

Aunt Margarethe had a scarlet wedding gown from SPAIN
as her father always wanted to see one against the SNOWS

...

The Greenland ladies had a sewing room a big one on Jacopsholmen

...

I TELL JO SOME THINGS ... for she likes to make notes for ideas for her writings ... which she is paid for ...

“ 1850s - Fred RANSOM - grandpa twice back ... who is Margarethe's father ... ` was coming home in the dark on Jacopsholmen our Island & he saw a famous painting drift from one goodly home to another across the snows ... Getting home he enquired of Gertrude `who was The RAPHAEL Madonna he had just passed as Jacop's Church Bell rang` ...

` Fred Ransom got used to this but some nights he had difficulty recognising his own wife if she was going to another home to show off her latest creation - so he built them a sewing room ... The Greenland ladies not only copied the Paris fashions they copied all the paintings they saw when he took them a spin in the Mary Rose - for he never sailed empty of those he felt should see the world - it was very useful that they learned so swiftly & they were able to act in the great PLAY Seasons - not just play in the orchestra ...

Dick Wagner & the others ...

“ After Albert died he kept away from Great Britannia a bit - it was inhabited by high class monsters of racism all getting BROKE from gambling & at The RACES trying to compete with the rich Americans - he`d sail in quietly to Montrose Basin to his brother John Ransom & the family ... if he had to ... ”
